RECORD NUMBER SUMMER SESSION

REGISTRATION WILL CONTINE THIS WEEK—WILL SURPASS OTHER YEARS.

The total registration of students at the Normal college up to noon today is 2,331, with many yet to register. This is the largest attendance ever had at the State Normal college during the summer sessions.

The crowds are being well accommodated in classrooms, rooming houses and cafeterias. The domestic science girls are operating a cafeteria in the men's gymnasium during the summer term to care for the overflow, as has been customary for the last few summers.

Yesterday noon the enrollment was 2,298 and Tuesday noon the figures were 2,180, showing a steady increase. Only 2,008 students had enrolled at 10 o'clock on the third day of summer school last year, and the grand total for that year, 2,109, was passed early Tuesday morning. It is predicted that nearly 3,000 students will have enrolled by the end of the week. The total number of summer students in 1920 was 1,705 and this was an increase over the year before.

Figures coming from other normal colleges throughout the state show as satisfactory increases for the coming term.

Classes started Tuesday morning and enrollment was so large that adjustments were made, many classes being divided. Normal college authorities are enthusiastic over the showing made.

A special assembly was held for the students Tuesday afternoon in Pease auditorium. President McKenny gave an address of welcome, telling of the importance of an education. Edward Mosher gave a violin solo, Prof. Lindegren sang, and James Breakey gave several piano solos.

This evening at 6:30 o'clock the first all-college "mixer" was held on the campus for the students to get acquainted.

WASHTENAW COUNTY PREPARES FOR FAIR

Getting ready for the fair is rather a new thing for Washtenaw county people.

In order to compete for the many and various premiums it is necessary to plan ahead of fair week.

Splendid premiums are offered for collections of seeds, grains and grasses. Persons planning to exhibit seeds, grains and grasses should secure liberal specimens at once and save samples of all grasses and grains when at their best. One of the best departments of the fair should be the individual farm exhibit. Exhibitors may show in the department anything raised or made by the farmer or his family, including fruits, vegetables, grains, handwork or anything outside of the animal kingdom. Premiums of $25, $15 and $10 are offered in this department. Early fruits should be saved while still hard, wrapped separately and brought to the fair office, where they will be placed in storage free until fair time.

According to reports from Mrs. I. R. Johnson, of Salem township, superintendent of farmers' club exhibits, three clubs, the Arbor Farmers' club, Saline Farmers' club and Salem Farmers' club will have club exhibits at the fair. There is room for one more farmers' club exhibit and Mrs. Johnson, whose address is Rushton, will be glad to hear from another society.

PRODUCTS SELL READILY ON HURON STREET MARKET.

Strawberries are history but other fruits have taken their place on the market on Huron street. All colors and kinds of cherries are offered as well as gooseberries and currants, and they sell readily. In the vegetable line pease and new cabbage take first place. The offerings this year are all first-class and the farmers say their products grow rapidly and well because of the favorable weather.

WORK ON CONTAGIOUS HOSPITAL STARTED

Work on surveying the big site chosen for the new contagious hospital is progressing and the actual construction of the hospital will be started as soon as the surveying is completed. It is believed that a different plan from the one originally drawn up will be used for the construction as the architects have notified Ypsilanti physicians that they would like to present plans they believe would be more satisfactory.

NAMING NEW HOTEL.

The selecting of a name for Ypsilanti's new hotel is meeting with a lot of response and every day the Board of Commerce is receiving a bunch of letters with all kinds of names, and according to the writer would make Ypsilanti's new hotel famous. The incentive of $10 for the name selected by the committee is also a spur that is bringing out a lot of names. Time will be up Saturday and then we can begin to talk of Hotel ——?

COUNTRY CLUB NOW HAS FINE 27 HOLE COURSE

Washtenaw Country club will celebrate the opening of the third nine-hole golf course on July 4th in a big gala day to be featured by prizes and special tournaments.

When these nine holes are open for play the local club will have a 27-hole course, the second largest in the state, Detroit being the only city with a larger course, having one of 36 holes.

The Washtenaw Country club is the third oldest country club in the state, having attained 22 years and a membership of over 300. For many years it supported nine holes and just before the war purchased an additional 22 acres to add 18 more holes to the course. During the war this land was planted to crops and last year the first nine holes were completed.

CHURCHES OPEN BIBLE SCHOOL

BOYS LEARN MYSTERIES OF JIGSAW, GIRLS SEW, SING AND STUDY BIBLE.

The daily vacation Bible school opened Monday in the Presbyterian church with an enrollment of 69 children.

Mrs. H. M. Chadwick is principal of the school; Miss Hazel Challis has charge of the hand work, and the other teachers are Miss Ruth Luscombe and Miss Zella Beardslee. The school will continue for five weeks with sessions five days each week from 8:30 to 11:30 a. m.

Children of all denominations from five to 14 years of age are invited to attend. They are divided into three classes, the beginners, intermediate and advanced. The three hours' session each morning is divided into the following periods: First, devotionals; second, music; third, memory period, during which time verses of the Bible are committed; fourth, story period and dramatization of stories; fifth, play period, which is outdoors if pleasant; sixth, hand work, and seventh, closing exercises.

The school is supported by the Presbyterian, Methodist, Baptist, Congregational and Episcopal churches. This is the second year for a school of this kind to be conducted here in Ypsilanti. Last year it was supported by the Presbyterian church alone, but children of several denominations attended and the enrollment last year was 134. Many children are absent from the city at present and it is expected the enrollment this year will increase rapidly by the second week of school

PROMINENT COUPLE MARRIED WEDNESDAY

Miss Marian Irene Stewart, daughter of Mrs. Anna Stewart, of 611 Ellis street, and Robert E. Schrepper, of this city, were quietly married Wednesday morning at 9 o'clock by Father Dennis Needham at the St. John's parsonage. Attendants were Miss Grace O'Brien and Arthur Stewart, brother of the bride. The bride was attractively dressed all in gray, her dress and hat being of gray canton crepe, and she carried Columbia roses and sweet peas. Her traveling dress was a three-piece suit of black and American Beauty. The bridesmaid wore green and white Canton crepe, with hat to match, and carried Ophelia roses.

Following the ceremony there was a wedding breakfast at the home of the bride for immediate relatives and Father Needham. The house was tastefully decorated with Shasta daisies and pink roses. The couple motored to Washington, D. C., and will spend several weeks in the east, after which they will be at home at 311-B Cross street, Ypsilanti.

Mrs. Schrepper is a graduate of the Ypsilanti high school, the Normal college and a member of the Theta Lambda Sigma sorority. She taught school in Detroit one year and in Central school in Ypsilanti two years. The groom is a graduate of Ypsilanti high school, was overseas two years during the war, is a member of the American Legion, and is first lieutenant of the Signal Corps.

Out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mrs. Susan Schlachter, of Chesaning, grandmother of the bride, and Mrs. George Schrepper, of Ann Arbor, grandmother of the groom.

HOME BAKERY INSTALLS BIG OVEN.

The old saying, "Nothing too good for the trade," is clearly demonstrated at the Model bakery, and George Renton, the genial proprietor of this model bakery, believes in this saying. He has recently installed a big Marshall oven with a capacity of 450 loaves of bread every 35 minutes, and along with this he has set up a new Read 3-speed cake machioe. George tells us that this is the best equipment that can be had and places this bakery in a position tot urn out baked goods second to none in the state.

ROTARIANS ARE TOLD DANGERS OF BAD TEETH

Dr. Russell Bunting, of the dental department of the University of Michigan, was the speaker at the Rotary luncheon Monday noon. Dr. Leo Whitmire, chairman of the entertainment committee for the day, was fortunate in securing Dr. Bunting for this talk, which was highly appreciated by the members of the Rotary. He told of the great danger of poor teeth to the health and said that through this means many of the diseases today could be traced to the mouth. He emphasized the need of careful attention of the teeth and spoke of the good now being dne in the schools in the care of children's teeth.

Mr. H. W. Noble, of the W. H. Noble company, of Detroit, also made a short talk relative to the Ray Battery company, of this city, telling the Rotarians what a remarkable growth this company had developed in the short time in Ypsilanti and its bright outlook for the future. He said that through the Ray Battery the name of Ypsilanti was being carired to the four corners of the earth.

Next Monday a patriotic program will be given and a treat is in store for the members.

LOCAL BOY SCOUTS BACK FROM SUCCESSFUL TRIP

The 54 Boy Scouts of Ypsilanti and their leaders, Deyo S. Leland, assisted by Frank Ryan, Hillary Jefferson and Chauncey Whitney, have returned from their camp at North Lake, where they spent nine days.

This camp was the first in many years for the Boy Scouts of Ypsilanti alone and was one of the finest and best equipped camps in this part of the country.

The Rotary and Kiwanis clubs contributed the cooking equipment from the funds raised last year in their baseball game. The Signal Corps loaned 10 large tents and plenty of blankets for each boy. The Normal college loaned cots for all and the Patriotic Service league financed part of the expense, while the boys themselves each contributed $6.

The boys did splendid work while at the camp. A total of 428 tests were passed. Thirty-nine boys passed the first class scout test in swimming ,doing some 50 yards, and many also passed the merit badge test of 100-yard swim. Thirty-eight merit badge tests were earned, Bruce McLouth passing the most with six to his credit.

Turns were taken at policing the grounds, waiting table and washing dishes. The camp was divided into four teams, with John Dignan, Robert Hatch, Harold Bentley and Robert Blakeslee as captains. Bruce McLouth won a loving cup for being the best all 'round camper; Carvel Bentley was second, and Robert Hatch third.

The evening campfires completed an active day, with songs, stories, yells and stunts. Snipe hunting was also enjoyed by a few.

MOTOR OWNERS MUST HAVE CERTIFICATES OF TITLE.

On and after July 1 no person may sell an automobile unless a certificate of title has been procured. Every driver must carry the certificate of title in his machine and show it at any time an officer demands proof of ownership.

It has been estimated that there are thousands of auto owners in Michigan who have not yet procured their certificates although they have had a year of grace.

Chief of Police Connors advises all local motorists who are without their titles to act at once and avoid trouble, as a heavy fine and jail sentence awaits all certificateless auto owners.

TWO BALL GAMES HERE JULY FOURTH.

Ypsilanti is promised two good games of ball for the Fourth of July. The fast Morgan & Wright team of Detroit will be here and will play both in the forenoon and afternoon. This is one of the fastest semi-professional teams in that city and they will make the Rays travel some to beat them. To enliven the occasion Jim Hart's band will be on the grounds and give a concert. Lovers of good ball should not miss these games.

FAITHFUL PAIR SENT TO CHICAGO.

Charlie and Bessie left Tuesday forenoon on the 10 o'clock train for Chicago. For years they worked and ate together. Their driver, Frank C. Hettinger, stated Monday evening that no better pair of horses was ever hitched to an express company wagon—for Charlie and Bessie are horses. "No load was too big or task too great for the team," Mr. Hettinger stated as he patted Charlie affectinately on the neck. The horses have been used here for a number of years and are being replaced by an auto truck.

NEGRO SLAYS BROTHER WITH BUTCHER KNIFE

Enraged because of repeated commands to go to bed, Joseph Hulbert, negro, 20, of 1507 Fuller street, Ann Arbor, stabbed his brother to death with a butcher knife Tuesday night shortly before 9 o'clock. After slaying his brother the murderer turned on his aged mother, who after a fierce struggle took the knife away from him. Hulbert then ran to a neighbor's, where he was found by the police. He appeared in Justice Thomas' court Wednesday morning, pleaded guilty and was bound over to the October term of court.

Hulbert was under the influence of liquor at the time and had implicated several others.

Funeral services for Orville will be held Friday afternoon, with interment in Fairview cemetery. He is survived by his mother, four sisters and three brothers.

RAY BATTERY TAKES CITY CHAMPIONSHIP.

Large crowds both Saturday and Sunday saw the Ray Battery take the city championship by winning from the Ypsilanti Independents, 11-6 and 4-3. Although the Independents played good ball they were not equal to the attack of the battery makers. Several errors helped the Battery boys to score.

The local club will go to Battle Creek for two games this week-end, where they will meet the Post Cereal team.

TO COMPILE COMPLETE HISTORY OF YPSILANTI

A complete history of Ypsilanti, from the time of its first settlers in 1823 up to the present, is to be compiled by Ypsilantians. Some months ago the D. A. R. presented a plan to the city council by which they hoped to have a history of the city written and published before the centenary celebration next year.

Mayor Schaible appointed a general committee, consisting of Charles McKenny, general chairman; Robert Hemphill, P. R. Cleary, Mrs. P. R. Cleary, Mrs. W. L. Kishlar and Mrs. E. B. Clizbe. Since then the committee has been augmented to 14 members representing Ypsilanti organizations and the plans are well under way.

PLANS FOR CELEBRATION AT LAKE ORION.

The Lake Orion Summer Homes company, of Orion, Mich., is planning a big three-day celebration from July 2 to 4. There will be all varieties of entertainment, including a complete radio receiving station, balloon races and ascensions, vaudeville and the finest swimming in the country. A free picnic ground and auto parking is provided.

M. S. N. C. PURCHASES 30 ACRES OWEN LAND

The state administrative board has authorized the purchase of 30 acres of land at a price of $70,000 for the Michigan State Normal college here, and President McKenny announced late Tuesday afternoon that the land purchase authorized is for all the Owen property lying west of Brower street.

This particular acreage is of special value to the Normal in that it completes its property holdings north and east of the school buildings and gives to the college a natural ampli-theatre. The Normal college has needed this land for many years but has been unable to get a satisfactory settlement. The Owen sanitarium had announced its intention of locating on the property and is understood to have offered $80,000 for the land. Assistant State Prosecuting Attorney Carl D. Moshier, Lansing, was here last Wednesday in the interest of the condemnation proceedings.

TO ANNOUNCE DECISION IN TANTON CASE SOON.

It is expected that Judge Sample will announce his decision in the case of Miss Alice Tanton against the Michigan State Normal college in the next few days. Miss Tanton demands readmittance to the college after being dismissed with several other girls on charges of misconduct

GRANT VERDICT IN FAVOR OF MRS. SIGNOR.

Judge George W. Sample on Monday directed a verdict in favor of Mrs. Florence Signor, defendant in the case of Wm. Russell vs. Florence Signor over a farm lease. Russell had sued Mrs. Signor for work. The court ruled the pleadings were insufficient.

CHAUTAUQUA ANNOUNCEMENT.

The Redpath Chautauqua program for this season, beginning July 27 and running to Aug. 3, will contain 18 notable attractions. A complete program will be announced next week.

LOCAL YOUNG WOMEN LEAVE FOR EUROPE

Miss Helen Cook and Miss Margaret Brooks will leave Thursday for their trip abroad. They will go with the Gates touring party, which is sailing from New York Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. They will land at South Hampton, England, will visit London five days, then go to Belgium and Holland, on to Munich, Germany, and then up the Rhine.

They will see the Passion Play at Ommeramergau, after which they will go through Switzerland into Italy, where they will visit Venice, Rome, Naples and Florence, then go through the Italian lake district and through the mountains into France. They will spend a week in Paris, visit the battlefields, and sail from Cherbourg, France, on the Majestic Sept. 6.

NORMAL OPENS RURAL SCHOOL

MODERN RURAL DEPARTMENT ENROLLS 465 STUDENTS.

In connection with the Normal school this summer there is a rural department which has three divisions.

The new law group, which is a special course to be completed in the six weeks' term. Four hundred and sixty-five students have enrolled so far in this group, which holds sessions in the Normal high school. There are 11 people on the faculty, with Miss Frances Burns, of Dowagiac, acting as directress. Second, rural education courses in the Normal proper. About 50 have enrolled up to date for specializing in this department. Prof. M. S. Pittman has charge of this division, assisted by Miss Ella Smith, who has been attending Columbia univerity this past school year. Third, demonstration rural practice school, conducted in the Normal training school for teachers in rural education to observe. This is in charge of Miss Carrie Crippen, a prominent rural school teacher of Washtenaw county.

Monday, the first day, there were less than a dozen rural children enrolled. It is hoped to have 25 or 30 attend, but the difficulty is the transportation. Farmers are so busy at present that they have not time to bring and come for their children.

THOMAS-HOPKINS WEDDING ELABORATE

The marriage of Miss Ellen Elizabeth Hopkins, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James H. Hopkins, and Mr. Laurence M. Thomas, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Thomas, occurred Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, 5 South Prospect

The Episcopal marriage service with ring was read by Bishop Charles D. Williams, of Detroit. Both the bride's mother and grandmother were married in the same room in the house. Daisies and quantities of smoke-bush made a pleasing background.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Amy Hopkins, and the bridegroom by his brother, DeLong Thomas. The bride was given away by her father. She was attired in a gown of white silk crepe and wore a delicate veil fastened with orange blossoms to a coronet of Irish point lace, and carried a shower bouquet of orchids, white rosebuds and swansonia.

The bride's table in the dining room was set with glass and the flowers of the centerpiece were white larkspur and ferns softened with masses of diaphanous baby's breath. The buffet was heaped with pink roses. The bride's friends assisted with the serving of the two-course luncheon. The abundance of beautiful gifts attest to the popularity of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas left by motor for Detroit, where they took an evening boat for Buffalo. From there they motored to Sheffield, Mass., where they are to act as bridesmaid and best man for DeLong Thomas and Miss Ruth Boardman. The two couples will then travel through the east and return together by motor. Mr. and Mrs. Laurence Thomas will live for the remainder of the summer in the Jackson house on Oak street.

Mrs. Thomas graduated from Michigan State Normal college in 1921 and has taught in the Battle Creek schools for the past year. She is a member of the Pi Kappa Sigma and was editor-in-chief of the Aurora during her last year in college.

Mr. Thomas graduated from the University of Michigan in 1921 and has entered the insurance business.

DEGREE OF HONOR MET TUESDAY EVENING.

The Degree of Honor met in I. O. O. F. hall Tuesday evening and initiated the following candidates: Mrs. Edna Lyons, Mr. and Mrs. Harry Smith, Mrs. Nellie Felt, Mrs. Hallie Hart, Mrs. Catherine Hawkins and Mrs. Lottie Sannar.

DR. A. E. WINSHIP TALKS TO KIWANIS

SAYS KIWANIANS ARE MORE CRUSADERS THAN ROTARIANS.

Dr. A. E. Winship, well known educator and editor of the American Journal of Education, gave an address Wednesday before the Kiwanis club. He said:

"The clubs like this one have cut a new figure in American life. Clubs are always an attraction to people who cannot get in. This is true particularly of women's clubs. So many clubs are propagandists, but the Kiwanis and similar clubs are crusaders, and crusading is high above propaganda. I believe the Kiwanians are more of crusaders than the Rotarians. Only three states in the country have made big gains in the last census. They are Florida and California. The increase Human nature played little part in Florida and Clifornia. The increase in population was due to climate.

"In Michigan the opposite is true. Climate had no part in the increase in population, but it was due to human nature. Southern Michigan and Detroit are in a new class. They should be classed with the three states known as the Empires states of America—Indiana, Illinois and Ohio. Chicago is an American city. It is the American metropolis and not New York. The latter city cares more for Europe and is known as an international metropolis. Chicago has 57 distinct lines of railroads. It is the only city where you can go anywhere and have parlor and dining car accommodations. The Illinois legislature was wise when it framed the railroad laws. Every road in Illinois must have a terminal. Detroit is now playing the same game and is doing wonderful things. Eventually it will get as good railroad service as Chicago."

Patrick Kelly, who was scheduled to speak, did not appear. No reason was announced as to why he failed to appear.

Edward Mosher played two violin selections, accompanied on the piano by James Breakey.

Prof. F. C. Gorton was announced as a new member of the club.

MANY FROM NORMAL LIBRARY STAFF AT MEET

Those from the Normal library staff who are attending sessions of the opening meeting of the American Library association being held in Detroit this week are Miss Ethel McCrickett, Miss Genevieve Walton, Miss Elsie Andrews, Miss Helen Butler and Miss Grace Hutton.

At the opening meeting President Burton of the U. of M. talked and Mr. Root, librarian of Oberlin college and president of the American Library association, gave an address.

On Thursday the 1,400 librarians in attendance will go to Ann Arbor, where they will be guests of the board of regents of the U. of M. for luncheon in the Michigan Union. The session in Detroit closes with a moonlight ride on the steamer Britania Friday evening.

MAJOR ARNOLD AND MEN AT SELFRIDGE FIELD.

Major Glenn B. Arnold and six men from the Signal Corps left Tuesday morning for Mt. Clemens to start the preliminary work on the air carnival which is to be held at Selfridge field July 1, 2, 3 and 4.

Major Arnold and his men will set up the telephones and radio outfits for the big event. The entire field will be covered by a telephone net and the 32nd Signal company will furnish air communications between the planes and the ground, as well as communication with Ypsilanti.

The carnival is being given by the 310th observation squadron.

FOUR AUGUSTA SUNDAY SCHOOLS PICNIC IN RECREATION PARK.

The four Sunday schools of Augusta township held a picnic in Recreation park Tuesday. There was a program of games and stunts in the afternoon, with bounteous dinner and supper. Hundreds of people attended in spite of the rainy weather. Games and sports of all descriptions filled the program.

PHOENIX LODGE GOES TO ANN ARBOR.

FROM COLDFRAME TO YOUR GARDEN

Plants Should Be Accustomed to the Outside Conditions Before Setting.

PROTECTION MAY BE NEEDED

Boxes or Small Boards Will Save From Sun, Wind and Frost—Water Before Transplanting—Carry Containers to Place for Planting.

It is assumed that the wide-awake gardener has been busy long before the weather is warm enough to sow any seeds in the open ground; that a window box or hotbed has been provided, and that a supply of plants of tomatoes, peppers, early cabbage, and eggplant are under way to set in the garden as soon as danger of frost is past.

If plenty of south window space is available, the United States Department of Agriculture advises that such crops as snap beans, cucumbers, muskmelons, and even sweet corn may be started in flower pots, paper bands or berry boxes filled with good soil, and they will be of considerable size by the time the air is warm enough to plant them outdoors. Plants that grow in the house or in the hotbed must be hardened or adapted to outdoor conditions before they are set in the open ground. This is accomplished by gradually exposing them to the open air during the warmer part of the day and later at night, care being taken that they are not caught by a sudden cold snap.

Hardening Early Plants.

When the plants are grown in boxes, or trays, the boxes may be carried into the open each day and the plants allowed to become gradually accustomed to the outdoor conditions. If they are in a hotbed or coldframe, the sash or other cover is lifted off during the day and replaced at night. Later the covering is left off entirely; however, it should be kept close at hand to be put on at any time that the weather should turn cold.

Plants set in the open ground may be protected from frost by turning small boxes over them and covering the boxes with a little earth. Old berry boxes are sometimes used for this purpose, but should be covered completely with soil, as the plants will freeze just as readily underneath the exposed boxes as if left in the open without any cover whatever. A good method of protecting plants is by setting a common roofing shingle or a small piece of board at an angle over each plant. These shingles can be set on the side to protect the plants from the sun during the daytime, or they may be placed on the opposite side in order to protect the plants from the wind and allow the sunshine to reach them.

In some cases gardeners have provided small frames, on the top of which are fitted single panes of glass, and one of these frames is set over each plant or hill to protect it. The glass should be so arranged that it can be partially removed during the warmer part of the day in order to prevent the temperature becoming too high inside the frame. These protectors give good results when used over hills of cucumbers, muskmelons and summer squashes, as well as over plants of sweet pepper, eggplant and tomatoes.

Points to Remember.

There are a few points in connection with the transplanting of house-grown plants to the garden that are worthy of special attention. In the first place, the plants to be transplanted should be watered a few hours before they are to be handled; this will cause the

Demand for Draught Horse Increasing, Says Dickinson

Fair Manager Discusses Plans of Michigan Exposition to Aid State's Farmers.

There is a greater demand for the draught horse today than there has been in the past several years and this demand is constantly increasing, believes George W. Dickinson, secretary and manager of the Michigan State Fair.

Geo. W. Dickinson

Mr. Dickinson bases his belief on his years of practical experience with the farmers of Michigan in connection with his administration of the state fair and cites, in support of his statement, the government's recommendation that farmers employ draught horses on farms of 200 acres and less if they hope to make money.

"It is the plan of the Michigan State Fair this year," says Mr. Dickinson, "to show how the draught horse can be used to profitable advantage, through a series of charts to be shown under the supervision of the United States Department of Agriculture."

This exhibit, he believes, will be almost identical to the one put on by the government at the National Dairy show and which won the praise of those who were fortunate enough to witness it.

"The draught horse is here to stay, and we intend to give it the finest representation possible at the State Fair this year," Mr. Dickinson asserts.

The fair manager also announced Charles T. Prescott, of Tawas City, would be the member of the board of managers in charge of the horse department, and Howard C. Allen, Washington Court House, O., would act as superintendent.

"It is surprising the popularity of the hunters and jumpers," said Mr. Dickinson in discussing plans for this year's exhibit, "and we also intend to show this class in its true form."

Prizes in the horse department will exceed $12,000.

Mr. Dickinson is anticipating a great exhibition of sheep at the fair here, September 1 to 10. He sees Michigan as one of the really great sheep raising states and stresses the importance of the fair visualizing Michigan's future in this respect.

"Vast acres in both the upper and lower peninsulas of Michigan are now being devoted to sheep grazing and I see no reason why Michigan sheep raisers should not present as educational an illustration of this work at the fair as could be hoped to be viewed anywhere in America."

Frank Coward, of Bronson, treasurer of the Michigan State Grange, and a member of he board of managers will be in charge of the sheep department, Mr. Dickinson announced.

MILK AND VITAMINES

Arthur Brisbane, speaking editorially last week to several million readers, said:

"Money for Wall Street speculation cost only $2.75 again yesterday. More important than the ups and downs of stock is the steady upward march of scientific discovery. One man at Johns Hopkins, after working for years, has discovered a new particular vitamine. He calls it 'vitamine D' that builds up bone. That discovery may put an end to the disease called rickets that kills thousands of children and makes others miserable cripples through life."

This, and the other Vitamines, are contained in our Whole, Raw, Class A Milk. The scientists say heating milk destroys some of the Vitamines and impair others. Better be safe than sorry. Buy Hatch Herd Class A Milk.

Hatch Herd, which produces only Class A Milk, is certified by both the U. S. and State officials to be free from tuberculosis. This is an indispensable safeguard. Do you get it?

Th children's day program was given at Friends church Sunday morning. The pastor talked from the words, "Suffer little children to come unto me and forbid them not," and "A little child shall lead them." A white paling with two gates in the center had been placed on the platform with a background of cat-tails. In the front was daisies and roses in profusion. Following the pastor's talk the children retired to the lobby and while the choir sang "Open the Door for the Children." They came slowly down the aisle, led by tiny Geneva Dicks, and passing back of the paling came slowly through the gates and formed group, where they sang "I'll Be a Sunbeam." Mary Essex and Cornelia Elliott gave a "Welcome." Donald Raymond, Richard Schneider, Laura Elliott and Geneva Dicks gave recitations. A pretty exercise, "The Builders," was given by Robert Lord, Donald Hearl, Lester Dicks, Donald Schearer, Arthur Dicks, Allyn Hearl and Loren Dicks. Evelyn Park, Ruth Aitken gave recitations. Bernard Hearl, Leon Jones and Mary Essex had a pretty exercise, followed by a song, "Happy Little Comrades," by Ruth Aitken and Mary Essex, who used their parasols very effectively. "The Flowers' Message," by Vivian Hewens and Katherine Schneider; recitations by Margaret Dicks, Katherine Schneider, Helen Raymond; a reading, Mrs. Mary Fulton; an effective exercise, "Rosebuds," by Grace Martin, Margaret Dicks, Cornelia Elliott and Sylvia Maulbetsch; a pretty rose drill and song by eight girls. The offering was followed by a pretty "good-bye" by Leota Schearer. The program was interspersed with songs by the choir. The decorations, pronounced the most effective ever had at Friends, were planned by Mrs. Clyde Breining. The fine program was in charge of Miss Ellen Gould and Willits Derbyshire had charge of the music.

The Riverside Study club held their annual picnic at the pleasant home of Mrs. Alice Darling Thursday, where a delicious pot luck dinner was served at noon. Mrs. Britton being unable to accept the presidency of the club, Mrs. Darling was elected to fill the chair. A motion to omit the July and August meetings was lost. Mrs. Helen Kelly, who is staying with her daughter, Mrs. Charles Freeman, of Frain's Lake, was present, coming with her granddaughter, Miss Emily Freeman, who was the guest of the club. Fordson TRACTOR

"Yes I've more Time for Myself Since I Got a Fordson"

The Fordson Tractor is taking much of the drudgery out of farm life; it is solving the labor problem; it is reducing the cost of preparing land by almost one half of what it was with horses; and it is saving one third to one half of the farmer's time; and making farm life more attractive.

The Fordson will run your threshing machine—and at the most opportune time for you. It will operate the milking machines, saw your wood, fill your silo, pump the water, and take care of every kind of belt work—

And don't forget—it will plow six to eight acres in a ten hour day, handling two plows with ease.

Thus the Fordson is the ideal year-round tractor. It will pay for its fall and winter keep in many ways.

There's a big story to tell you about the Fordson—and a true one—come in and get the facts. Or, if you prefer, telephone or drop us a card and we will bring them to you.

Don't you find it exceedingly difficult—almost impossible—to keep your home clean with old-fashioned methods these summer days? With the windows open, the dust and dirt collects so quickly that a daily "going-over" is almost a necessity.

And that is just what The Hoover enables you to do—quickly, tirelessly, yet thoroughly. Once a day, if you wish, you can glide The Hoover over your rugs with ease and keep them immaculately free from all dirt and unsightly litter the whole summer through.

Hoover cleaned rugs wear longer and are always fresh and bright. Have a free demonstration in your own home; no obligation.

The down payment on a Hoover is only $6.25.

WILLIAM FARNUM HERE IN FOX SUPER-SPECIAL.

"Perjury," a William Fox special production, presenting William Farnum in a role which is said to make supreme demands upon his dramatic genius, will be at the Wuerth theatre next Monday and Tuesday. The production enjoyed a special run in a Broadway, New York, theatre, where it created a sensation. Metropolitan reviewers declared it one of the most intense human interest dramas ever seen on the screen.

Harry Millarde directed the big special, and the cast includes Sally Crute, Wallace Erskine, John Webb Dillion, Frank Shannon, Frank Joyner, Grace La Vell, Gilbert Rooney and Alice Mann.

The story of "Perjury" requires the famous screen star to display varying emotions of tremendous intensity. The hero, Robert Moore, appears first as a strong and successful man of 45 years, manager of a large factory, and a happy husband and father, genial and cheerful. From this he is transformed by suspicion and jealousy into a person in unceasing torment. Red rage fires in his mind, and then comes despair, followed by submissiveness as prison doors close upon him for 20 years.

Through the long term in prison Robert develops a kindliness and saintliness of character which endear him to the warden and guards. There is pathos in the situation, but the tragic elment has passed. The scene in which the prematurely agd convict leaves th prison, and those immediately following are said to be the most touching portrayals ever given by William Farnum.

STATE FAIR TO SPONSOR ALL BREED DOG SHOW

Following close the first annual specialty show of the Mid-West Shepherd Dog club at the Michigan State fair grounds, is the announcement by G. W. Dickinson, secretary-manager of the exposition, of an all-breed dog show at this year's fair, Detroit, September 1 to 10.

The all-breed show will be held under the auspices of the Michigan State Fair Dog club of which Mr. Dickinson is an interested member. Elaborate preparations now are being made to house the canine aristocracy of Michigan.

WANTED: A Suffragist Wife

(©, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Something unusual had happened at suffrage headquarters that morning. A man—a big, thoroughly masculine one, too, who looked as if with the proper make-up he might have been a moving picture impersonation of the good-looking western ranchman or cowboy—had actually walked up to Miss Hester Judd's desk—Hester was the paid secretary of the organization—and had asked to enroll as a member. To be sure, there were many men on the list of membership, but those men members were usually brothers or fathers, whose task of becoming suffragists had been smoothed by some daughter, wife, or sister, eager to add new names to the roll and more membership fees to the treasury. It was really rather unusual for a man of his own free will to walk right up to the secretary and say, as did this newest member: "If you please, Miss, I'd like to belong to your organization, and if there is anything I can do besides paying a check for a hundred dollars to show I am a member, be so good as to tell me what that is. I'd like to come to the meetings and do anything else I can to help."

The newcomer hesitated when it come to signing the enrollment blank, and then he said to Hester: "I may as well tell you that I am acting for—for Mr. Warwick Stevens—and not for myself. I am his private secretary, you see. Perhaps I had better sign my own name." When Hester took the blank she saw that the secretary's name was Robert Walker.

Hester, in virtue of the generous enrollment fee and perhaps even more because the newcomer was of the outdoors type of man that especially appealed to her, felt inspired to detain him as long as possible. She rose from her chair at her desk and conducted him through the four or five rooms that made up the suffrage headquarters—the reading room with its array of suffrage pamphlets and magazines, the tea room with its cheerless, cheap wicker chairs and tables, a private office for the officers, a cubbyhole of a pantry and the outer office where she herself had her desk.

Mr. Walker spoke with something of a drawl and this, as well as a certain hesitancy and friendliness of his manner, betokened to Hester that he was not a man of the city. She was not especially surprised when he asked her to let him talk to her a minute. He motioned to two wicker chairs in the tea room placed conveniently for a tete a tete and so began their confidence. Mr. Stevens, whom he represented, was, he told Hester, a grandson of Mrs. Warwick Stevens, senior, and of course Hester had heard of her as one of the most prominent of the very wealthy suffragists.

"Perhaps I should not have told you I was Mr. Stevens' secretary," said Mr. Walker, "so I'll depend on you not to say anything about that. For a reason I cannot mention now Mr. Stevens is very anxious to get acquainted with some of the prominent suffragists here. That is why I dropped in."

Having filled his overcoat pockets with pamphlets on the various phases of suffrage the new member left the headquarters for that day promising to return the next day when Miss Hazel Stoppleton—usually mentioned in newspaper accounts as the "suffrage beauty"—was to give a talk on the cause.

Hester thought it was perhaps because they were both secretaries, though of rather different sorts, that they were attracted to each other from the first and she was not entirely surprised when after a few interviews in the headquarters, Mr. Walker took her completely into his confidence regarding Mr. Stevens' attitude toward suffrage.

"I'll tell you how it is," he began. "Young Stevens is very anxious to know some of the young women interested in the cause. His grandmother, who is completely absorbed with the question, has made a queer sort of disposition of her property. Warwick is her only grandson and heir, and she has stipulated that she will give him a couple of millions more or less on the spot if he will marry a suffragist, and if he does not marry a suffragist she will cut him off entirely in her will. She has gone so far as to say that the girl must have been actively associated with suffrage before she made that stipulation, because it would be an easy matter for any girl whom Mr. Stevens fancied to assume an interest in suffrage as a pretext. However, Mr. Stevens doesn't care for any girl in particular, so he is, to put it bluntly, in the matrimonial market for an attractive young suff."

"Can you imagine anything so calculating?" was Hester's reply. "He must be rather mercenary to be willing to marry for money rather than love."

"Oh, I wouldn't be so hard on him as that. He figures that the money would be a rather pleasant little bit to have and since he has never fallen in love with any one yet he might as well fall in love with a suffragist as anybody else."

Hester laughed. "So he has commissioned you to meet some attractive suffragists and introduce him to them so he can find a wife to fill the bill?"

"Yes, that is substantially why I came to the headquarters the other day. And I must say I have had to report to Mr. Stevens that there are some very attractive looking girls interested in the cause. The idea used to be that good looking women didn't go in for that sort of thing, but judging from what I've seen over here I should say that the had looking women must all be antis."

"Wouldn't it be wonderful if he should meet and marry Hazel Stoppleton?" suggested Hester, beginning to approve of the scheme. "He couldn't help but love her—she is a regular goddess."

"I don't quite believe Mr. Stevens goes in for the goddess type and if you mean that tall, copper haired, cold-blooded lady who talked with broad 'a's' here the other afternoon, why I can just say that Mr. Stevens wouldn't fall for her one little bit."

"What type does he like?" asked Hester, quite willing to help in the search for a wife since it was all for the cause.

"I've heard him say he was partial to smallish, brown-eyed girls. I know for a fact he's very fond of dimples."

Both secretaries reddened a little with confusion—Mr. Walker, because he felt he had said something rather foolish and Hester, because she was little, and had brown eyes and very nice dimples. There was an awkward pause, and then Mr. Walker went straight to the point.

"I have an idea that Mr. Stevens would like a wife very much like yourself. Excuse me for being personal but ninety-nine men would lose their hearts to you—that is, a girl like you—to the one that would fall in love with Miss Stoppleton."

There was another awkward pause and then: "Pardon me for asking, but if I should arrange to have Mr. Stevens meet you and he should fall very much in love with you, as I am practically certain he would—judging from what I've heard him say about his taste—is there any reason you know of why—well, what I want to know is this—are you engaged to any other man or pledged in any way that would make it quite out of the question for you to think of marrying Mr. Stevens?"

Hester struggled to hide her embarrassment. She thought of half a dozen possible things to say to relieve the tension, but the silence grew longer till Mr. Walker explained: "You see sometimes a man like Mr. Stevens falls very, very much in love with a girl like you in a very short time—and I'd hate to have him lose his heart only to find out that—that you were engaged to somebody else."

"But, I'm afraid you didn't know that I'm only a paid secretary. To be sure, I'm a suffragist but a man in Mr. Stevens' position would want to marry a society suffragist."

"There was nothing about that in the grandmother's stipulation," argued Mr. Walker. "All that was necessary was a suffragist who had worked for the cause and you work harder than all the rest put together."

It was late in the afternoon and fortunately the headquarters was empty save for Hester and the big man sitting beside her desk, so there were no eyes to be opened in dismay when he leaned forward and took Hester's two hands in his and kissed them. Then he slipped on his knees before her in the attitude of supplication that Hester thought had passed out of mode among suitors.

"I'm mad about you, Hester. You must listen to me. I've known you only a few days, but with a girl like you falling in love doesn't take long. That very first time I felt there was something that drew us together and I was fool enough to think that you felt that way, too. Tell me you love me—"

"I believe—in fact, I know that I do love you. There is no use saying I don't. Perhaps after all, Mr. Stevens would like Hazel Stoppleton. I can't be a bigamist even if I am a suffragist!"

And it was not till a half-hour later, after Hester had been escorted to her boarding house door, that she realized that she was really promised to marry the heir of the celebrated Mrs. Stevens and that Robert Walker, private secretary, was merely a convenient alias of that notable woman's grandson.

WAITERS WOULD BE PLEASED

Woman's Suggestion Must Be Recorded as Decidedly the Right Thing in the Right Place.

The Woman attended a large semi-public luncheon given by a well-known literary club. It was held in the ballroom of one of our newest hotels and the tickets were $4 a head.

The members and their guests were scattered haphazard at the different tables; there had been no placing and consequently the Woman found herself seated next to a garrulous stranger, who took possession of her every moment.

After the efficient, attentive waiters had placed the finger bowls and the speeches were about to be delivered, the talkative one gathered the attention of the smartly gowned women at the table by tapping on her glass.

"Ladies," she said brightly, "please, please don't let any of us forget the waiters! Let each of us put our 10 cents in the middle of the table."—Chicago Journal.

AMERICAN LEGION AUXILIARY MEETS

The regular meeting of the American Legion Auxiliary was held at G. A. R. hall Friday evening. In the absence of the president, Mrs. Briggs, the first vice-president, Mrs. Charles Arnold, presided. There will be no social meeting in July. Mrs. Terence Phillips was initiated, the beautiful initiation service being used for the first time since the society was organized.

A number of copies of "The Booster" were distributed with blanks for subscriptions. "The Booster" is published by the boys of the Roosevelt American Legion hospital to tell of the service men who come there to regain the health and strength they lost while defending their country. One item in the June 15th issue will be of particular interest to Ypsilanti people, especially those who helped in any way to make possible the gift referred to. It follows:

"One of the most substantial gifts yet received by the hospital management arrived on Tuesday in the form of a check for $140 sent by the auxiliary to the legion post at Ypsilanti. The money was sent to Mrs. Elizabeth Webster, chairman of the general welfare committee in Battle Creek, with the instructions that she and Manager Welsh were to use it for furnishing the new sun parlor just completed off the west pavilion. The parlor will be furnished like a commodious sitting room, where the boys can enjoy all the comforts of home."

A state-wide campaign has been started by Mrs. Elizabeth Webster, chairman of the committee in charge of that work, to secure 16,000 quarts of fruit and 8,000 quarts of pickles for the tables of the hospital the coming winter. Six thousand quarts have already been pledged. This campaign is not confined to the legion and legion organizations. Any member of the A. L. A. can give information and stickers to be used. The auxiliary hopes to send 300 quarts.

BOUTELL-McLANE.

Wm. Guy Boutell, of this city, and Miss Helen Marie McLane, of Albion, were married Thursday afternoon in Ann Arbor at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Priest on Oakland avenue. Rev. Harvey C. Colburn officiated, using the ring service.

The bride wore white organdie and carried pink roses. Miss Marguerite Burrell, of Albion, attended here and wore pale blue organdie and carried pink roses. George Boutell was best man. A dainty luncheon was served following the ceremony.

Mr. and Mrs. Boutell left for a camping trip and later will go with the Signal Corps to Grayling to the state encampment. Mr. Boutell holds a commission as lieutenant in the corps.

Mrs. Boutell is a sister of the late Ernest McLane, a member of the Signal Corps. It will be remembered he died in May, 1921, as a result of being gassed. "Mac," as his Ypsilanti friends called him, and Mr. Boutell were buddies during the campaign on the Mexican border an 1916 and 1917 and went overseas together with the 32nd division in January, 1918.

The young couple will make their home in Ypsilanti, where Mr. Boutell is employed in the postoffice. Only a few intimate friends and near relatives were present at the wedding.

Olive Is Ancient Fruit.

It is doubtful if there are many fruits that have been known to man longer than the olive. Records show it was cultivated by the Egyptians more than 4,000 years ago, and olives and the olive tree are mentioned often in the Bible and all ancient writings. Asia Minor is supposed to have been the original home of the olive. The trees often reach a great height and a very old age—some of them in parts of southern France being nearly 2,000 years old.

DISMISSES INJUNCTION: INSTALLS GAS OVERNIGHT

Judge George W. Sample Monday dismissed the injunction suit brought against John J. Polzin, in which he was restrained from installing an oil and gas station on his premises on Cross street. The court held that the school board, that began the injunction suit, had no jurisdiction over the streets of the city.

Prof. A. G. Erickson stated Tuesday that a warrant may be asked for Polzin for violation of the city ordinance recently passed by the council.

At midnight Monday Polzin put a half dozen men to work and by morning his station was selling oil to customers. The school board complains that the oil station being so near the public school buildings will endanger the lives of the pupils. Action by the city to restrain Polzin from selling is now anticipated.

Thought and Speech.

The precise relation between speaking and thinking is a matter hard to define but it is clear that in a person's education the word and the idea are inseparable. When a child learns a new word he learns a new idea. When you enlarge his vocabulary you enlarge his mind. Few people would deny that clear thinking is the greatest aim in all education as well as the chief need in our civic and social life today.

CHAPTER X.

As in a nightmare the squatter girl blundered along the path, back to the hut, carrying Wee Jerry in her arms.

Granny Hope was hobbling from the coop-hole when the girl stumbled over the threshold.

"Something awful's happened, huh, Pollyop?" the woman faltered, and limping across the floor, she bent and gathered the thin small boy to her. "Come to grandma, Jerry dear," she coaxed, "an' hear a wee bit about Love."

The crooning voice, choked with entreaty, touched the edge of Polly Hopkins' soul. She swayed forward to her knees, caught the one withered hand extended to her and clung there.

"I'll set, my bird," mumbled Mrs. Hope weakly, and she dropped into a chair with Jerry in her lap. "There! Aw! Don't cry that way, honey. Listen, dear heart. God's everywhere! An' His love too! Can't—"

Out of the shower of glistening curls appeared a wan, tearful face.

"Daddy's been took to jail, Granny Hope," Pollyop burst out. "God can't go in a dirty jail, God can't! Old Marc—"

Mrs. Hope's sudden trembling broke off the girl's words; and Polly wept again in hopeless misery as the woman repeated almost dully:

"God can't go in a dirty jail."

Then her face, lighted by a radiant thought, lost its drabness; and for a time she stroked the bowed young head. Then:

"Be your daddy lovin' you an' the baby?" she queried softly.

That question had never been put to Polly Hopkins before. Had Granny Hope gone crazy to ask such a thing? Every squatter in the settlement marveled at Jeremiah's devotion to his children!

"Huh, brat dear?" came more forcibly from Granny Hope, as if she were determined to have an answer.

Pollyop lifted her head wearily.

"Sure, sure, Granny," she moaned. "He'll love us till he dies."

"Then my lass ain't believin' any longer that the God is love, like once she was, huh? If Daddy Hopkins has went to prison like you said, then ain't God there? An', dear lassie-child, love's love, an' God's God behind the bars just the same as in this here beautiful shanty!"

The girl, still on her knees, edged closer to the old woman's side and put her arms around him.

"Listen to what Granny Hope says baby dear," she sobbed. "Love's went right along to jail with our daddy. Jesus'll help 'im. He can, can't he, Granny dear?"

"He can' an' He will, poor brats," answered Mrs. Hope. And then through the quietude of the early morning she voiced in tremulous words the promises that had been food and drink to her during all the lonely years that had passed over her head. "Ask, an' you'll get it, dear lambs. Seek your daddy, an' you'll find 'im, little dears."

One of Pollyop's arms went about the woman's neck in a trice. The shimmering chestnut curls mingled with thready locks of gray; and then two quivering wizened lips fell upon a trembling rosy mouth.

"He Can, an' He Will, Poor Brats," Answered Mrs. Hope.

"Say something more, little Granny," whispered Pollyop. "Oh, God'll do what you say He will—mebbe, huh?"

[illegible] unusual question, the woman's head bobbed forward.

"With God, Pollyop," she whispered faintly, "there ain't no mebbe. When you get a swat from a hand like Old Marc's, then a angel from Heaven—"

Instantly Polly Hopkins was on her feet. An angel from Heaven! A blessed angel would help Daddy Hopkins!

"Darlin'," she murmured, bending over Mrs. Hope, "get on my bed an' take Wee Jerry. I'm goin' out."

Polly Hopkins was in the Robertson grape arbor before she fully realized the task which she had undertaken. To thrust herself into the presence of Robert Percival was not so easy as she had anticipated.

"Just let Pollyop find 'im alone, Jesus dear," she prayed, and then stepped out from among the vines.

It was a cozy scene that met her eyes when she ventured into the house. The family were at breakfast; and Marcus MacKenzie in his riding suit was drinking coffee. At the sight of her he put down the cup and rose to his feet; and instantly Percival got up too. Evelyn went white; and an ejaculation fell from Mrs. Robertson's lips.

Throwing a questioning glance from one to the other, the girl's eyes settled at last on Robert's face.

"They've took my Daddy Hopkins to jail," she faltered, "an' I've come to get 'im back."

The loud laugh that burst from MacKenzie's lips brought a glare from Robert.

"Thank God, we've got him at last," Marcus exulted.

The expression of woe died in the squatter girl's eyes as Robert Percival came toward her.

"What!" he ejaculated, and then as though conscious of the hate that was directed at the newcomer by Marcus MacKenzie, he added in a lower tone: "Poor little girl! Come into my study, Polly, and tell me about it."

"Nonsense, Bob," interrupted MacKenzie rudely. "Let her tell her lies here. I'd like to hear what she has to say."

A flush mounted to Robert's face as he turned angrily on the speaker. During the moment he was struggling for composure, Mrs. Robertson and her daughter hung on the scene with bated breaths.

"Must I remind you whose house this is, MacKenzie?" demanded Percival finally; and Marcus sank down into his chair with a muttered apology.

"I didn't come to tell lies, Mr. MacKenzie," Polly broke out impetuously. "I've come to tell God's truth." Then the recollection of her father's desperate need overwhelmed her, and she wailed: "Your men planted a squirrel on 'im, sir; Daddy said so, an' Jerry saw 'em."

To Percival, watching the man and girl, came the conviction that she had told the truth, and that MacKenzie knew she had. Before he could break in, Polly spoke again.

"Please, sir," she begged, "please, Mr. MacKenzie, give 'im back to me. You can. Do it, an', an', oh, God, I'll die for you."

She fell forward on her knees; and then Marcus MacKenzie laughed again. Lower and lower fell the curly head, for the sarcastic sound told her more plainly than any words could have done that she would get no aid from him.

Robert stooped and lifted her up.

"D—n you, Marc! Stop it!" he demanded. "It's wicked, downright wicked!" And to her he murmured: "Poor little girl! Poor little Polly."

He tried to lead her away; but how could she go without making another effort? She turned to Evelyn.

"You do something, ma'am!" she implored. "Please do it quick, an', an'—" A light leapt into her eyes and she burst out: "Mebbe some day you'll be askin' me a big favor, an' here's my word before God, I do it."

For a short space of time the two girls stared into each other's eyes, but Evelyn's fell first. She sank back limply.

"Take her away, Robert!" she groaned. "It's too dreadful."

After Pollyop and Robert had gone, she turned swiftly on Marcus.

"I wish they were all dead, those wretched squatters," she said fretfully, and frowning, MacKenzie continued his breakfast in silence.

Miserable days passed for the entire squatter settlement. That the right arm of the Silent City had been lopped off when Hopkins was imprisoned showed plainly in the abjection of its inhabitants. Every countenance was wrinkled with anxiety; and still the strange men hovered about the lakeside.

Ugly rumors circulated through the Silent City. It was said that to fix a felony on Hopkins, the officers claimed that in searching him, before shutting him up, they had found a revolver in his pocket. Every one that knew him scouted the idea, but Jeremiah Hopkins was promptly indicted for carrying concealed weapons.

The only concession Robert had been able to obtain was permission for Polly to visit her father, and day after day she carried Jerry to see him.

The day of Hopkins' trial Polly had to stay at home to care for Granny Hope and the baby.

Late in the afternoon, while she was rocking Wee Jerry, for there was no other way to keep him quiet, there came a rap on the door. Placing him on the cot, she called a soft: "Come in."

The entrance of Robert Percival filled her with apprehension, he looked so serious, so drawn and pale.

"It's about daddy," she exclaimed, forgetting for the moment how embarrassed she was.

Robert nodded.

"Sit down, Polly," he said gravely, "and I'll tell you."

Mutely she stood staring at him.

"Sit down, dear," he insisted.

"I don't want to sit down," she moaned. "Tell me about daddy. What's happened?—He's goin' to Auburn, huh?"

Had he been able, Robert would have contradicted her. Gladly would he have chased away the welling tears that came slowly into the dear eyes.

"Is it Auburn prison?" she whispered. "Did the jury say he was guilty?"

"Yes, Polly, but I've still hopes I can get him another trial," answered Robert. "Oh, little Polly, please don't cry, please don't."

Unmindful that he was holding out his hands to her, she sobbed hysterically, utterly deprived of self-control. The more Robert pleaded with her to cease, the more she kept up the incessant wail.

At the sound of her anguish, Jerry awoke and set up a loud screaming, and, ever true to her mother instinct for him and all others in her wild world, Pollyop took him up and seated herself, hushing and caressing him.

"The littlest mother in the world," breathed Robert tenderly, bending over her. "And a brave girl you are, too, Polly Hopkins."

"I can't be brave ever any more, I can't. I need my daddy so, I do. I'm thinkin' my heart just busted when they took him away."

He understood, and Robert's very soul melted in sympathy. Indeed, never had he worked so hard on any one thing as he had done to defend the squatter. It had been only after MacKenzie had outwitted him that he had come to the Silent City to break the bad news to Polly Hopkins.

"Pollyop," he began, much moved, "you do need your father; every girl does. But while he's gone, if he really has to go, I can make living without him much easier for you. You must take some of the money you have for yourself," he hastened on. "No one needs it more than you do. No, now don't shake your head, dear. Some one must help you—don't you see?"

"'Twas awful good of you to give me the money, an' let me help the squatter women," came distinctly from the sobbing lips, "but Jerry an' me couldn't take a cent of yours!"

Somehow Robert had expected this, but her refusal did not make him any the less determined to help her. For a time he was silent, as Polly slowly rocked Jerry back and forth.

After a few moments the boy fell asleep, and his sister laid him quietly on the bed again.

"Now what be I goin' to do?" she queried forlornly, looking straight at him. "Granny Hope says love's all powerful, an' every night I cry out to the good God to bring my daddy home. It's true, ain't it, Jesus can help a squatter girl?"

"Of course," Robert assured her. "Of course, and, oh, Polly, I want you to be different—"

"What do you mean by bein' different?" she stopped him quickly, and then she caught the look he cast around the room.

"I'll always be a squatter," she went on fiercely. "I love squatters, I do."

His face burned at the emphasis on her words, yet he liked her better for standing by her humble friends.

"And you love me too, don't you, Pollyop?" he asked, reaching out and taking one of her hands.

Didn't she love him? Ah, more than she even dared to admit to herself! A blush mounted to her curls.

"Yep, I'm lovin' you, too," she breathed. "You an' daddy—"

Robert stood up dizzily, bringing her up with him. What was there in this crude squatter lassie that made his heart beat so?

"Polly," he murmured, drawing her to him. "Little Polly," and then he raised her face to his—"Kiss me, sweet."

Limp and trembling, she leaned against him as she had that day in his own home. She was so tired and lonely.

"I want you always, Polly," he whispered in her ear. "Some day I want you for my wife. I'll take you away from Ithaca—all of you, your father and the baby—and Granny Hope too. You hear, don't you, Pollyop?"

At that Polly clung to him. She had lost sight of the fact that she might have to marry Oscar Bennett to free Daddy Hopkins, and to keep her people in the Silent City. She only realized that she was in Robert's arms, and that he was telling her over and over and over that he adored her.

"Hadn't you best go now?" she asked. "Some one might catch you here. No! Please, please don't kiss me no more."

"Hadn't You Best Go Now?" She Asked.

Without the slightest regard for her protestations, Robert, smiling, gathered her completely into his arms.

"Perhaps," he stammered, "perhaps, sweetheart, your father'll come back in spite of Marcus MacKenzie. Good-by, dear."

She followed him to the door and watched him go up the lane. Then she crept back into the shanty.

"Daddy," she cried, "I'm tryin' my best to save you, dear, an', an' I will, I will, darlin'. Your brat'll save you, Daddy—but oh, God, it seems as how I couldn't do it."

CHAPTER XI.

Over a week had passed since Hopkins had stood before his peers to be judged of a crime the law would not overlook. His lawyer, a good one and well paid by Robert Percival, had fought strenuously for a new trial; but after much deliberation on the part of the judge, the motion had been denied; and this was the last day of Jeremiah's stay in the county jail.

It was soon after luncheon time that a high-powered motorcar was carrying Evelyn Robertson and Marcus MacKenzie to the Bennett farmhouse. The purchasing of the farm had been settled, as far as Marcus was concerned, although Eve's pleading and Oscar's stubbornness had made him offer more for the place than it was really worth.

When the farmer walked up to the automobile, as it stopped before his door, Oscar paid no attention to Evelyn, sitting beside MacKenzie, save to give her an awkward bow.

"You've spoken to this squatter girl about what you want, Bennett?" asked Marcus, going to the point at once.

"Yes, sure I have," growled Oscar. "I told you that t'other day; but Polly seems to be always holding off for something. If she toes the mark, then I'll sell my farm and take her West. I won't have that brat of a Jerry, though, but I suppose Polly'll make a row when I tell her that."

"You won't be worried with the boy, Bennett. I'm going to have the Children's society take him. Hopkins will serve a long term, and if you marry Polly, the rest of the pests will scatter after a while. I'll be glad to be rid of the whole Hopkins tribe. But that girl is like a burr; she sticks tighter, the more you pull!"

"That's the bargain, Mr. MacKenzie. I sell the farm at the price we talked if I get Polly Hopkins. If I don't get 'er, then I won't sell. I can make a good living here for me and my mother, and I don't intend to leave this country without Pollyop."

The thought of his staying around Ithaca filled Evelyn with dread. She knew something of the tenacity with which he clung to any notion that might take possession of him. How could she have ever submitted to his caresses? And the words, "Until death do us part," rang in her ears, filling her with nauseating disgust.

"I wish he were dead this minute," she thought passionately.

OBITUARY

EDWARD MORGAN.

Edward Morgan, a pioneer of Superior township, passed away at the home of his son, Harry Morgan, in Superior Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Morgan came from his home in Middleville six weeks ago and one week later was stricken with paralysis. Mr. Morgan was born in New York state 75 years ago and came to Michigan when a young man, settling first near Plymouth and later on what is known as the old Parkhurst farm in Superior. Forty-seven years ago he was married to Miss Metta Parkhurst, who, with two sons, survive him. Services were held from the home Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock, with interment at Carmalec. Rev. Moon, of Ann Arbor, officiated.

MRS. MARY FERRIER.

Mrs. Mary Ferrier, widow of the late Philo Ferrier, died Monday morning at the age of 92 years after an illness of several weeks. Mrs. Ferrier was born in Genesee county, New York, in 1830, and came to Michigan when a young woman, living most of her life in Ypsilanti. Seven years ago she moved to Detroit, returning to Ypsilanti about a year ago and making her home with Mrs. Sample at 611 Emmet street. Mrs. Ferrier's only daughter, Kate, died in 1910 and Mr. Ferrier died in 1912, he being 92 also at the time of his death. Three step-children, Charles, Mrs. Lucy Orcutt and Miss Gertrude Ferrier, all of Ypsilanti, and one nephew, Mortimer Tower, of Detroit, survive. Services were held privately at 611 Emmet street Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock, with interment in Highland cemetery.

Fourth of July Togs

Picnics and camping and Fourth of July affairs call for serviceable clothes that Milady can enjoy herself in. She will want to look well and stylishly dressed and still she will not want to wear her best dresses that soil so easily. In the summer wardrobe of every well-dressed woman there should be several good looking wash skirts—we have them in every style and description; some are perfectly plain—others are fringed—some are plain white and others are striped.

To wear with the skirt Milady will want one of our striking fibre silk sweaters—or a long silk filet sweater with fringe a foot long—or perhaps she would prefer a little slip-on in a gay color to suit a summer fancy—we have them all.

Knickers are the latest fad—but not a useless one—What is more comfortable for walking or playing golf than a comfortable pair of tailored knickers—either in white or in a darker color?

Swimming is made twice as pleasurable for Milady when she knows that she has one of our nobby bathing suits—we have them in all styles and descriptions—fibre silk or wool—in dark colors or bright—plain and with gay stripes. A bathing cap and shoes to match finish the costume.

Jack Tar Play Togs of khaki save washing and make play more enjoyable for the kiddies. We have just received an extra fine quality of these handy play suits for girls from 6 to 16 years.

Advocates Right Training For Boy Farmers of State

G. W. Dickinson Sees Need of Constructive Work For All Youngsters.

The true mission of the Michigan State Fair, as seen by George W. Dickinson, secretary and manager of the exposition for the past decade, is one of educating the rising generation of farmers in the correct atmosphere.

Geo. W. Dickinson

So far, the Michigan State Fair has been a splendid force in the lives of boys and girls on the farms in this state. This has been indicated in the enthusiasm with which the youngsters have participated in the competition to win a place in the Boys' State Fair School.

Speaking before the farmers' club division of the board of commerce at Detroit, recently. Mr. Dickinson outlined the course in manual training, judging of stock and other valuable training which is given the boys who are brought to the fair.

"I believe the Michigan State Fair can be of invaluable service in educating our boy farmers," declared Mr. Dickinson, "and I propose, this year, to concentrate on making the educational division for boys better than it ever has been before.

"The Michigan Agricultural College and the government now are co-operating with us through an extension course and fine results are boldly apparent. The course for boys will be confined to stock judging and similar instruction and the training for girls will include cooking, canning, poultry culling and other things."

As has been the policy in the past the expenses of 150 boys and the same number of girls to and from the fair and during their visit at the exposition will be defrayed by the fair.

Forrest Lord of Mt. Clemens, will head the department of Boys' and Girls' clubs, R. A. Turner, state club leader at M. A. C., East Lansing, is superintendent.

E. T. Cameron, of Lansing, will be superintendent of the educational department, assisted by F. W. Frostic, of Wyandotte, this year.

While discussing the educational department, the fair manager branched into a discussion of the interest in dairying in Michigan. Being a frank man he doesn't hesitate to criticize what he terms lethargy.

"There is a great opportunity for improvement in the Michigan dairy world," said Mr. Dickinson, "and I have had visions of the State Fair playing an important role in the realization of a greater dairy Michigan.

"This year, visitors to the fair will see the finest butter sculptural exhibition ever put on anywhere. We also will show the various cheese products manufactured in Michigan, domestics, and dairy machinery of most modern type in operation."

Fred W. Warner, of Farmington, is the member of the board of managers. in charge of the dairy department.

ON BEING CORRECT WITHOUT A FAULT

A gentleman instinctively knows how to react toward any social amenity. He is at ease because he is always natural. In his selection of clothes he chooses those patterns and modes that are conducive to poise and grace. This affords him an advantage in his daily contact with other men. The knowledge that he is correctly attired enables him to give his whole mind to the niceties of an occasion.

Invariably, such men choose Hirsh, Wickwire Clothes. They find in these garments a well defined atmosphere of quiet dignity that to them is essential to good dress. It is not surprising that Hirsh, Wickwire Clothes should excell in these matters. A score of years, devoted exclusively to the fashioning of gentlemen's clothes have made Hirsh, Wickwire an arbiter in what is correct. You will find these clothes reasonably priced. They are also ready to wear home.

NATIONAL W. C. T. U. PRESIDENT RETURNS FROM SOUTH AMERICA

Five republics of South America were included in the tour of Miss Anna Adams Gordon and Miss Julia Freeman Deane, made in the interest of the cause of world prohibition. Miss Gordon, national president of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union of the United States, and vice president of the world W. C. T. U., with Miss Deane, editor-in-chief of the official publication of the organization in the United States, The Union Signal, were commissioned by the national body to make a survey of Europe and the South American countries at the convention in St. Louis in 1919. They visited all the countries open to strangers in Europe in the spring and summer of 1920. This year they have made a tour of the Latin-American countries, including Peru, Chile, Uruguay, Argentine and Brazil. They will bring to the convention that meets in San Francisco, August 18 to 23, a prophecy from representatives of the government in Chile, Argentine and Uruguay that prohibition will be established there within five years. South America is watching closely the effect of the prohibitory law in the United States, both in its social and its economic aspects. Nothing but complete failure here could prevent the enactment of similar legislation there, and there is no thought of failure, either in the minds of the South American temperance workers, or here.

Indicative of public opinion towards prohibition is the attitude of the governments and of educators of the highest rank towards the cause. Because of this sympathy the teaching of scientific temperance is included in the curriculum of the schools, for which teachers are trained in the normal schools. To meet the question of economic loss the government of Chile has already instituted a program of propaganda to teach the value of grape culture for other purposes than the making of alcoholic beverages and is advocating legislation to provide financial aid for those who undertake the conversion of their plants to other purposes than wine making.

Thieves entered Leslie Bird's hen house, carrying away about 70 hens. The getaway was made in a Ford machine.

Mr. and Mrs. Mark, of Detroit, were Sunday guests of Mrs. Mark's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Manley Bowen.

The farmers and all fruit growers are thoroughly convinced that the sleet and ice storm in the spring has destroyed worm pests, cherries being free from worms.

Red Cross Gives $310,000 to Aid 'Clean-Up' Drive

An appropriation of $310,000 for Red Cross work in connection with the "clean-up" campaign instituted by the Government to bring the claims of all disabled service men who are entitled to Federal aid before the proper government bureau for action, has been made by the American Red Cross. The Executive Committee of the American Red Cross in making the appropriation authorized the appropriation of $35,000 of this sum to the American Legion to defray the expense of the Legion representatives assigned to the various districts of the Veterans Bureau.

The remainder of the appropriation was authorized for apportionment among the several Divisions of the Red Cross for carrying on that part of the "clean-up" work that falls directly upon the Red Cross organization.

Chilean Students In U. S. Colleges

Six young people of Chile, three young men and three young women, are being sent by the Chilean government to the United States to spend four years in American colleges. Their mission is to study the educational system of the United States, particularly as it concerns higher education, and to investigate the effects, economic and physical, of the prohibition of the manufacture and sale of alcoholic beverages.

Chile is very near the enactment of a law similar to the Eighteenth amendment to the United States constitution, waiting only for a little further observation of the result of the prohibitory law here, and to develop a little more assurance in the minds of those engaged in the wine industry that grapes may be grown with profit without the liquor industry. Both government officials and educators are lined up strongly for prohibition, and the prophecy is that another five years will see Chile dry.

The young students who are being financed here by their government are being placed in different parts of the country, under different environment, and it is expected that their observations will be useful in helping Chile to come to a clear understanding of the effects of prohibition on the industrial and social life of the people and upon the public health. The three young women have been placed in the special charge of Miss Anna A. Gordon, president of the W. C. T. U. in the United States.

Obituary

MRS. JOHN THOLL.

Funeral services for Mrs. John Tholl were held from the home of her sister, Mrs. Will Carson, 945 Sheridan avenue, Saturday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock, with interment in Highland cemetery. Mrs. Tholl was Miss Helen Muir before her marriage and was a graduate of the Michigan State Normal college art department. She was born in Ypsilanti 36 years ago and had many friends. Her body was found in the family cottage at Portage Lake by one of her children Thursday morning. She had become despondent over continued ill health and had hanged herself.

Parents of Alexander Hamilton.

Alexander Hamilton was born at Charles Town, in the island of Nevis, West Indies, January 11, 1757, and appears to have been the natural son of a Scottish trader named James Hamilton, who died on the island of St. Vincent about 1799, and Rachel Levine, originally named Faucette, and of French-Huguenot descent, who sometime previously had separated from her husband.

DEGREE OF HONOR TO MEET FOURTH TUESDAY OF MONTH.

The Degree of Honor will not hold social meetings in I. O. O .F. hall during the summer months. The regular business meetings will be held the fourth Tuesday evening of each month in the hall as usual. A picnic has been planned for July 11 in Recreation park.

SEVERAL CASES CONTAGIOUS DISEASES REPORTED.

A few cases of scarlet fever and diphtheria, also whooping cough and mumps have broken out on the east side but as the schools are now closed it is not thought that there will be any serious trouble. The general health of the city is very good.

ENTERTAINED ON BIRTHDAY.

Mrs. Frances Wadsworth, of Ellis street, was nicely entertained June 25 at the home of her daughter, Mrs. I. C. Drew, of Wayne, the occasion being her eighty-third birthday. Covers were laid for 20. A delicious three-course dinner was served. A huge cake, ornamented with 83 candles, was a pleasing feature.

E. A. HAY LEAVES FOR WEST.

Mr. and Mrs. E. A. Hay and family are leaving Ypsilanti Saturday for Mt. Clemens. Mr Hay will go out west and when located the family will leave soon. Among the parties which have been given in their honor this week are a horseshoe tournament at the home of George Morhous Tuesday evening, a croquet match at the Hay home Wednesday evening and a card party Friday evening at the home of Frank Hettinger. Friday is the wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Hettinger.

LEGION HOSPITAL FOR TB'S IS LIKE A FINE BIG CLUB

AN EVENING FIRE-SIDE SESSION AT LEGION TUBERCULAR HOSPITAL

"More like a club than a hospital" is the frequent remark of visitors at the American Legion hospital for tubercular patients near Battle Creek.

Every effort is made by the hospital staff, all of whom are American Legion members, to keep the surroundings cheerful so that the recovery of patients may be hastened.

The veterans who are now in the hospital are suffering from varying degrees of infection. Some are very ill indeed. Others need simply rest and skilful watching and diet. For these men especially, the Legion has made efforts to keep the hospital even brighter and more interesting at home.

This Legion hospital is the only one of its kind in the United States—a hospital for veteran tubercular patients only, and conducted entirely by ex-service men.

One of the hospital's warmest admirers is Senator Townsend of Michigan. He helped in the move to send many government cases there.

Before the end of the summer the hospital will have a capacity of 400 men.

COUNTRY CLUB ACTIVITIES.

Today the ladies of the Washtenaw Country club will match with the ladies of Meadow Brook Country club, near Northville, on the course here.

On Wednesday afternoon there was a men's golf tournament at the Washtenaw Country club for winning the directors' cup. It was a melal handicap play. The winner was determined by the total number of strokes made in the course, and each player was given a handicap by which good and bad players had equal chance to win. Lawrence Brown won the directors' cup, his gross score being 87, his handicap 28, and his net score 59.

DISTURB PEACE, PAY $25 FINES

Roy and Speedy Richardson were found guilty Monday by Justice Stadtmiller of disturbing the peace last Friday at the home of Henry Lee, residing at 413 Harriet street. The men were each fined $25, which they paid.

Bert Goodal, of Detroit, who was with the Richardson boys, pleaded guilty Friday to a similar charge and paid a fine of $25.

THOMAS-BOARDMAN.

Arthur LeLong Thomas, son of Mr and Mrs. C. W. Thomas, of Forest avenue, was married today to Miss Ruth Boardman at the home of the bride in Sheffield, Mass. Those from Ypsilanti who are guests at the wedding are Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Thomas and sons, J. R. Thomas and R H. Thomas, and Mr and Mrs Laurence Thomas, who were married last Saturday.

Odd Experience.

One day I went skating. The creek was about a mile away from home. After I had been skating for some time it began to snow very hard. I thought I would skate down the branch of the creek to a bridge just a few steps from the house. I skated and skated before finding i had gone down the wrong branch and was about three miles from home. It was a strange experience, I must say.—Exchange.

Needed Another Dose.

Marjorie was a guest of Helen. The two disagreeing, Helen's mother called her into the next room and explained to her that Marjorie was her guest and that it would be polite for her to allow her to have her own way. A few minutes later they disagreed again and Marjorie, after looking at Helen a minute or two, remarked: "You had better go in there and let your mamma talk to you again."

Pa in a Bad Way.

"Dear Mary," wrote a woman to her absent daughter, "I am sorry to cut your vacation short, but you'll have to come home right off. Your pa fell off a load of hay this morning and is feeling terrible. The doctor has just been here and went. He says it will take some time before your pa will be up, because the fall has separated his diagram from his liver. I want you should catch the 6:45 in the morning. Ma."

Practical Uncle.

The wealthy uncle was talking over the prospects of his nephew with the boy's mother. "How is he doing with his studies?" "Oh, very well. He's very intelligent; he shows a great talent for music, and his manner is very haughty. His teacher thinks he will become a conductor?" "Ah! Indeed!" responded his uncle; "bus or trolley car?"

WILLIS MILK PRODUCERS MEET MONDAY EVENING

The Willis Milk Producers' association will hold their regular monthly meeting next Monday evening, July 3, at which time plans have been arranged to supplement the program with six reels of moving pictures County Agent Osler will show the five-reel rural comedy "Spring Valley."

The plot is buit around two farmer neighbors who have their loubts about organized agriculture. The story and acting are true to farm life. It will be an evening of good entertainment and at the same time drives home the necessity of the organization of farmers. It has already been shown several times in the county to large rural audiences and has never failed to please everyone who has seen it.

The Willis associatioin expects to serve ice cream at the meeting. Everyone in the community is welcome to attenl.
